

Tamannaah Bhatia's Ragini MMS 3 Director REMOVED, Film Put On Hold?

In 2025, it was reported that Tamannaah Bhatia has been finalised to lead the third part of Ekta Kapoor's Ragini MMS franchise. As soon as the reports were out, her fans were quite excited about this project. However, it seems like they will have to wait a little longer for Ragini MMS 3. A new report claims that the film has gotten into trouble even before it could go on floors. Read on to what really went wrong!

According to Variety India, the exciting third instalment of Ragini MMS has been indefinitely put on hold. According to the report, the director Sahir Raza, who was supposed to helm the film, has been removed now. The reason behind his abrupt removal is said to be due to a scheduling clash from his ongoing commitments. The sources told the publication that Raza is currently serving as a showrunner on a Netflix series and as per a recent mandate from the streaming platform, the showrunner should be present on set daily.

This very reason impacted the shooting schedule of Ragini MMS 3, forcing the makers to part ways with the director. The film's team is looking for a replacement but it seems like it won't go on floors anytime soon.

As per the earlier reports, Ragini MMS 3 is expected to re-brand the film franchise into a new genre. Reportedly, Ekta is focusing more on supernatural elements and looking forward to breaking ties with the horror-erotica space.

The Ragini MMS franchise started off in 2011 with Rajkummar Rao and Kainaz Motivala, followed by Ragini MMS 2 in 2014. The sequel is known for the song Baby Doll featuring Sunny Leone. A recent report suggested that the makers are now looking to recreate the magic of that song with Tamannaah Bhatia in the third part.

Meanwhile, Tamannaah also has Vann with Sidharth Malhotra and Rohit Shetty's upcoming biopic on ex-Mumbai top cop Rakesh Maria, starring John Abra-

Fans Can't Get Over Kajol's Daughter Nysa Devgan: 'Her Smile Is So Cute'

Bollywood star kids often find themselves in the spotlight for the smallest and most candid moments. This time the paparazzi caught a glimpse of Kajol and Ajay Devgn's daughter, Nysa Devgan, in a completely unguarded moment.

Photos and videos showed Nysa sitting inside her car and chatting on her phone. She was seen adorably blushing while looking at her phone. The rare sight of the star kid instantly grabbed attention, as the moment led fans to wonder what or who had Nysa grinning at her phone. The post was shared with the caption, "Her smile says it all."

Nysa, who graduated with a bachelor's degree in international hospitality and luxury brand strategy, reportedly does not have any plans to pursue a career in acting at this moment. During an interview with Shubhankar Mishra, Kajol shared, "I have received a couple of calls."

Kajol confirmed Nysa is not planning to enter the film industry at the moment and emphasised her support by stating, "If she wants to do whatever she wants to do, she will tell us, and we are with her 100 per cent, whatever she wants to do."

Previously, Ajay Devgn also addressed the rumours of Nysa's Bollywood debut. During an appearance on Koffee with Karan, the actor shared, "Right now, she doesn't want to be an actor. I don't think she wants to be, but tomorrow if something changes, they will run a 20-year-old interview where Ajay Devgn said this, but right now, there is zero per cent chance."

Kajol and Ajay Devgn on the Professional Front

Kajol was last seen in Kayoze Irani's action thriller Sarzameen. The film stars Prithviraj Sukumaran and Ibrahim Ali Khan in leading roles alongside Kajol. Up next, the actress is all set to appear in another action thriller, titled Maharagni: Queen of Queens.

The film stars Kajol in the titular role alongside Prabhu Deva, Naseeruddin Shah, Samyuktha, Jissu Sengupta, Aditya Seal, Pramod Pathak, and Chhaya Kadam in other prominent roles. The release date is currently under wraps.

On the other hand, Ajay Devgn has an exciting lineup of films coming up next. The actor is all set to be back in Dhamaal 4 alongside R. Madhavan and Sanjay Dutt.

The film is scheduled to hit the theatres on June 12. Ajay Devgn will also be seen in films like Ranger, Drishyam 3, and Golmaal 5.

Disha Patani has once again proven why she is one of Bollywood's most daring fashion icons. At a recent event, she turned heads in a striking red corset concept saree designed by Tarun Tahiliani, a look that seamlessly blended traditional Indian drapery with contemporary sensuality. Known for her bold sartorial choices, Disha elevated the ethnic silhouette into a statement of glamour and allure, making it one of her most talked-about appearances in recent times.

Rakul Preet Singh Says Vadh 2 Is 'Definitely Worth Watching'

Vadh 2 hit theatres on February 6 and has been earning strong critical acclaim ever since. Given its powerful cast and the success of the first part, widely regarded as one of the finest crime thrillers in recent times, the praise was hardly surprising. The film has impressed not just audiences but industry insiders as well, and actress Rakul Preet Singh is no exception.

The actress took to her Instagram Stories to share a glowing review of the Neena Gupta and Sanjay Mishra starrer, applauding the film for its gripping narrative and great Rakul Preet Is Impressed With Vadh 2

Sharing a picture from the theatre, Rakul posted a heartfelt note praising Vadh 2. She wrote that she watched the film the previous night and that its story stayed with her even the next morning. Calling the storytelling "brilliantly layered," she also praised the film for its "memorable performances."

Rakul added that the film is definitely worth watching on the big screen and encouraged audiences to watch it in theatres, saying that well-made films with strong scripts deserve to be celebrated.

Vadh 2 is penned and helmed by Jaspal Singh Sandhu and produced by Luv Ranjan and Ankur Garg. Along with Sanjay Mishra and Neena Gupta, the film also boasts a great ensemble cast consisting of Kumud Mishra, Amitt K. Singh, Akshay Dogra, Shilpa Shukla, and Yogita Bihani.

Neena had earlier shared a video around the film's release, urging people to watch Vadh 2 in theatres. While film promotions are common, her message stood out for how heartfelt it was. In the video, she said she was genuinely impressed with the final cut of the film, praised its editing, and encouraged audiences to experience it on the big screen.

The comments section of the post was filled with great reviews of the film. A user said, "Yes, the movie is very good, go watch it guys." Another one added, "Superb movie...too gripping." Someone remarked, "Saw the movie after watching this video...and truly ma'am so proud of you!"
