

Priyanka Chopra Reveals Why She Thinks Her Dad Ashok Chopra Would Have Picked Nick Jonas As Her Life Partner

Priyanka Chopra Jonas, who was recently seen in The Bluff, has often talked about her bond with her late father, Ashok Chopra. Her father passed away in 2013 after battling cancer. Priyanka even shared why she thinks her father and Nick would have gotten along well.

PeeCee was busy promoting her recently released film, The Bluff, alongside Karl Urban. During her conversation with Mythical Kitchen, the actress opened up about her father and revealed whether Nick would have gotten along well with him. She went on to say that her dad would have picked Nick for her if he had a choice. She said, "Nick is exactly the kind of person my dad would have picked for me if he had a choice. You know, someone who's a musician. My dad's first love was music. He loved music. And I do really feel that my husband is a prodigy. I think he's, for those who know him as a singer, songwriter or as a writer, who have seen him in the studio, it's wild to see."

The Aitraaz actress further said that she goes to the studio to watch Nick work whenever she wants to be re-inspired. She said that Nick "creates from ideas and inspiration, and he puts things together so beautifully". Priyanka added, "So that is one thing my dad would have loved about Nick. But more than anything, Nick is a very wise soul. I think he would have wanted someone like that for me because that ain't me, I am not wise. The balance you need, the yin to your yang. That would have been a wish of mine, that my dad would have met my husband and my daughter."

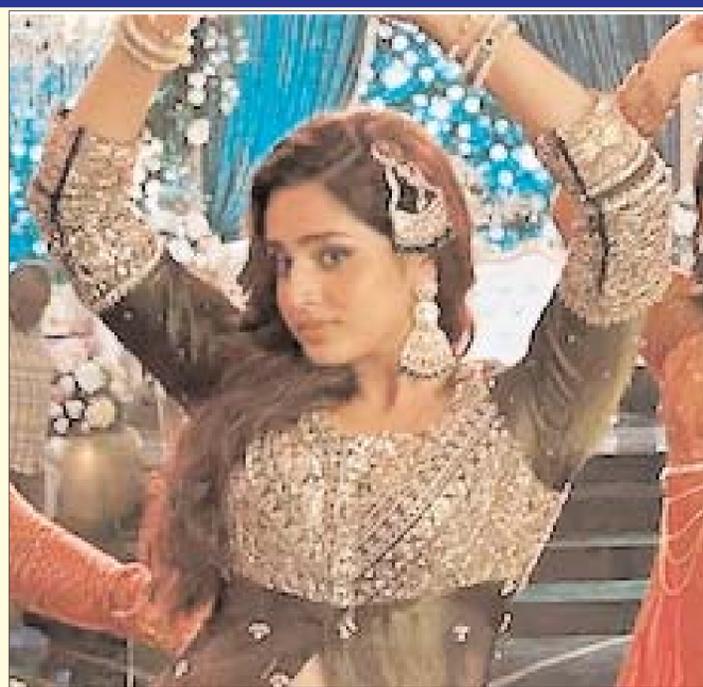

Nick and Priyanka got married in 2018, and back then, she revealed how much she missed her father at her wedding. The duo tied the knot in the presence of their close friends and family in Udaipur as per Christian and Hindu ceremonies. Later in 2022, they welcomed their first child, Malti Marie, via surrogacy.

Ayesha Khan Slams Trolls After Being Mocked For Shooting Dhurandhar's Song Shararat On Her Period

In 2025, Aditya Dhar's Dhurandhar, starring Ranveer Singh, Akshaye Khanna, Sanjay Dutt, and Arjun Rampal, took the box office by storm. The film went on to become the year's highest-grossing film. Apart from the film's intense, gripping storyline, the song Shararat topped the chartbusters. The song, sung by Jasmine Sandlas and Madhubanti Bagchi, features Krystle D'Souza and Ayesha Khan. After the song became a massive hit, Ayesha revealed that she was on her period while shooting for it. Soon after she made the revelation, the actress was hugely trolled on social media. Now, Ayesha has slammed the trolls during her recent interaction at an event.

Bigg Boss fame Ayesha Khan was recently seen gracing At the Women of India summit by Mojo Story. During her conversation, she said that a week after she talked about shooting Shararat while she was on periods, she saw memes and trolling about the same all over social media. She also shared how her confession went on to become a 'national news'. Ayesha said, "It's unfortunate that whatever you do or say these days, everything is a joke, dark humour, and fun. It's a good thing that you can laugh about everything. But to laugh at anything and everything isn't exactly fun. I probably didn't even realize it because it's so normal for me. Every month, we go through this cycle. We do so many things when we're on periods."

The memes and trolling also included the viral meme template of "peak detailing by Aditya Dhar," and even the ongoing Gulf-Iran conflict hasn't been spared. She further continued, "Me being on periods had suddenly become a national joke. We really need to educate our sons and brothers. I'm sure the jokes were from men. It was really bad. I'm a proud woman. I was really, really proud of whatever I did while being on periods. You wouldn't be able to do that without being on periods. I did that on my periods."

Ayesha shared that she feels fortunate not to experience severe pain during her periods. However, while shooting for Shararat, she couldn't help but feel slightly conscious about her appearance. She admitted that she felt bloated at the time and worried she wasn't looking her best. Since it was such a big song, she naturally wanted to look perfect on screen.

actor Varun Dhawan was seen in a completely fresh avatar in Border 2. However, in order to do justice to playing the role inspired by the real-life war hero, Colonel Hoshiar Singh Dahiya, he had to undergo some intense training that included strength training, endurance work, and mobility. Talking about his role, Varun revealed that even playing a soldier on screen required a certain level of physical and mental discipline. He added that things got even more interesting as they were shooting in real locations, something that helped him put himself in the mindset of a soldier.

"Border 2 demanded a different level of physical and mental discipline, especially since we were shooting at real locations like Babina, and such situations really put you in the mindset of a soldier. You're out there all day, often in tough conditions, so fitness becomes less about looking a certain way and more about stamina and recovery," explained Varun.

Along with physical training, Varun also tried his best to keep his diet clean and simple, packed with high protein, healthy carbs, and of course, a lot of fluids to keep himself hydrated during the outdoor shoot.

He added, "My routine had to be very functional, lots of strength training, endurance work, and mobility because the terrain and weather can not be kind. Diet-wise, I kept it very clean and simple: high protein, good carbs, and lots of hydration to sustain long outdoor shoots."

He has the "No Entry" sequel that everyone is talking about and will be co-starring Arjun Kapoor and a few other big names from the Bollywood comic universe. Varun Dhawan, with his attractive public appearances or the warmth he shows when the cameras are off, is a constant winner of people's hearts, which is obvious not only from the on-screen but also from the off-screen ??????????world.
