Khanna and Akanksha, her father commented, "As you are very genuine, I am Akanksha's daddy. She said, very true. She has been living in Andheri, at my place, for one year. Only till officially separated will they support each other professionally. One word for Gaurav is a very good actor. He could not provide financial and moral support to her. He breached trust not to talk on child, but he intentionally acted and took sympathy. It was his plan to make Akanksha a villain in the media. Thanks to you."

While there is no confirmation if the person commenting is actually Akanksha's father or not, and the source of this post remains unverified, the comment has sparked new discussions around the ongoing controversy.

Akanksha Chamola Reveals She and Gaurav Khanna Are Getting

Speaking on Lock Upp 2, Akanksha said, "Gaurav Khanna and I are getting divorced. We have been living separately for the past one year. People don't know about this yet." She further added that the decision was mutual and something they had been discussing for a long time. "This is a decision we have both taken. We have been talking about it for the past one year," Akanksha said.

Her confession came as a surprise to Farah Khan, who appeared visibly taken aback by the revelation.

"There is nothing bad between Gaurav and me. We still talk to each other, but we feel that we are not right for each other as partners. That is because we both want different things in life," she said.

Akanksha revealed that their marital issues had been going on since the time Gaurav participated in Bigg Boss 19. She said, "All this has been going on since Bigg Boss 19. Gaurav's parents and my parents told us to stay separately for some time. It happens sometimes that when you stay away, you realise each other's importance."

An unverified comment by a person claiming to be Akanksha Chamola's father alleged Gaurav Khanna tried to paint her as the villain amid their divorce.

Actress Akanksha Chamola's revelation about her decision to divorce actor Gaurav Khanna has left their fans in shock. While many called the announcement a PR stunt, it looks like Akanksha Chamola's father has reacted to the claims and shared that the couple are indeed living separately. He also hinted at Gaurav not providing financial and moral support to his daughter.

Kylie Jenner faces third workplace lawsuit amid miscarriage claims

Kylie Jenner is facing a third workplace-related lawsuit after a former private chef alleged that an "intense" workload and inadequate workplace support during her high-risk pregnancy contributed to a miscarriage.

The complaint, filed in the Los Angeles Superior Court on Monday, June 22, also names management firm Tri Star as a co-defendant.

According to the lawsuit, the woman began working for Jenner in November 2024 and informed her supervisors that she was three months pregnant and required workplace accommodations because of her high-risk pregnancy.

The complaint alleges that in December 2024, she experienced a medical emergency after being instructed to "transport heavy food items across the street and uphill". After "choking and gasping for air" and receiving assistance from security personnel, the woman claims she was later reprimanded for upsetting Jenner.

The lawsuit further alleges that on February 1, 2025, the chef worked at a birthday party for one of Jenner's two children and was not provided "adequate support" despite requesting assistance from supervisors. The complaint states, "Due to exhaustion and overwhelming physical strain, [she] broke down emotionally in the bathroom during the event."

It further alleges, "That evening, she experienced extreme physical exhaustion and heaviness throughout her body due to prolonged and intense workload." According to the filing, the woman suffered haemorrhaging the following morning, drove herself to the emergency room, and was informed that she had lost her unborn child. She also claims she was later "falsely accused" of "leaving the kitchen and refrigerator in disarray following the Palm Springs event".

The lawsuit alleges that she was hospitalised again on February 8 after another episode of haemorrhaging.

Following her agreement to relocate to New York, the complaint claims her employer treated her communication regarding her medical condition and relocation as "a voluntary resignation despite her intent to remain employed." The filing states that she was informed on March 14, 2025, that she had been "removed from the Kylie Jenner household assignment", with March 31 marking her final day of employment.

The chef has accused Tri Star of "discrimination, harassment, retaliation, pregnancy-related mistreatment, accommodation failures and wage violations".

The complaint also alleges that she received an email in May 2025 offering a settlement along with a release agreement.

In a statement, the chef's attorney, Della Shaker of Shaker Law Group, said, "Our client's decision to come forward was not made lightly. She hopes that sharing her experience will encourage others facing similar circumstances to know they are not alone and that the law provides protections for every employee," as quoted by People magazine.

Ariana Grande sparks Ricky Alvarez reunion buzz

Ariana Grande has once again found herself at the centre of relationship speculation after she was spotted spending time with former boyfriend Ricky Alvarez in Texas.

The singer was seen having lunch with Alvarez ahead of her Eternal Sunshine Tour stop in Austin, prompting fresh discussion among fans.

According to a source, Grande and Alvarez "have been hanging out recently". A representative for the singer declined to comment on the report.

The sighting comes months after Grande reportedly ended her relationship with Wicked co-star Ethan Slater. Reports confirmed earlier this month that the pair had split earlier in 2026.

Grande and Alvarez dated between 2015 and 2016 before parting ways. Despite the breakup, the two have remained on friendly terms over the years. Their cordial relationship first drew attention after Grande referenced Alvarez in her 2018 hit Thank U, Next with the lyric, "Wrote some songs about Ricky, now I listen and laugh." At the time, Alvarez responded with a humorous Instagram Stories video, joking about the lyric before writing, "Nothing but gratitude. Thank you, next... (those songs are fire tho... you're welcome)." Grande reshared his posts, playfully apologising that he "got the worst line" while adding that it was "meant very lovingly".

The online exchange had fuelled reconciliation rumours back then, but Grande quickly clarified that they were "friends" and urged fans to "take a big ol' breather".

The singer has also made subtle changes to the Ricky lyric during recent performances of Thank U, Next. During her June 26 concert, she sang, "Wrote some songs about Ricky, I know he's still got my back," while at an earlier show she used the line,

"Wrote some songs about Ricky, now they still kinda slap." Neither Grande nor Alvarez has publicly commented on the latest speculation surrounding their reunion. — ANI
